

INDUSTRY-LEADING ERP COMPANY CENTRALIZED WORKPLACE STANDARDS WITH SALTMINE

saltmine

Company profile:

- ERP platform company
- Headcount: 15,000 employees
- Portfolio size: 3 million square feet

This industry-leading ERP platform company is best known for their ability to help HR and finance teams balance data about people and finance.

The challenge

Capital projects were being carried out across the portfolio but not consistently adhering to the company's workplace guidelines.

This company wanted to centralize all of their global projects in-house—and in one place—to empower their internal workplace teams to ensure that all global spaces were in compliance with their workplace guidelines and building standards.

Why Saltmine?

This company chose Saltmine for the platform's ability to centralize all new and existing capital projects on the cloud. This makes them accessible to all project members and stakeholders, and transforms building standards from unenforceable suggestions into living and evolving workplace guidelines.

How they use Saltmine

The Saltmine platform gives this company the ability to rapidly program spaces in line with their guidelines—resulting in intelligent, guideline-driven space and zone plans. It also streamlines and centralizes the stakeholder experience so decisions about test fits are always well-informed.

Outcomes

Time savings

The team experienced significant savings in the early stages of the design process by bringing steps like site selection, in-house. This increases their ability to enforce workplace guidelines and building standards.

Money savings

The team built a well-informed business case to reduce a floorplan by 33%—significantly reducing the amount of non-compliant spaces. This company will save $3.5 million dollars on rent over the next 5 years.

Better projects

Overall deliverable quality, engagement, expectations, and process flows improved significantly by centralizing collaboration with stakeholders, regional directors, site leads, and external partners.
